

POST-GRADUATE QUALIFYING PROGRAM (PQP)

The Post-Graduate Qualifying Program (PQP) is a one semester non-award program designed to lead students into Edith Cowan University (ECU) masters degrees. The program is designed for students who already have tertiary qualifications but have not qualified for direct entry into university masters programs. This program is taught on ECU's state-of-the-art Joondalup campus.

The program will equip students with the knowledge, skills and English Language Proficiency (ELP) for entry into masters degrees in the Faculty of Business and Law at ECU. The program is made up of four core units comprising three PQP units that embed and test academic rigour and language development, together with one discipline-based unit for which ECU will award advanced standing on transfer to the university. A minimum of 50 percent pass in all units is required for progression to ECU.

UNIT DESCRIPTORS

FBL5010 – Managing People and Organisations (Advanced standing granted by ECU for this unit)

In this unit the focus is on the individual student as an emerging manager and the knowledge they need in the context of how people behave at work and how organisations are structured and managed to achieve organisational success. In this unit, students are introduced to the fundamentals of management and different organisational processes in the context of the contemporary global business environments. Particular emphasis is placed on the application of theory to matters that may confront managers today and into the future.

PQP4100 – Effective Communication

The ability to communicate effectively is recognised as an essential skill for those wanting to be successful in their studies, career and personal relationships. This skills-based unit uses a number of practical activities to enable students to achieve these essential skills. Students are given techniques/strategies to: manage speech anxiety; think critically in oral/written communication; understand perception and memory; research, package and deliver logical and persuasive messages; understand cultural and gender differences in oral communication; become effective listeners and work effectively in teams. This unit addresses three main areas: organisational communication; oral communication and written communication through analogies, metaphors and visuals. Approximately 60% of time is devoted to developing effective and persuasive oral skills and 40% to written skills.

PQP4300 – Research Methodology

Knowledge of research methodology is of increasing importance in all areas of study. Many business decisions require research-derived information, and much of contemporary management practice is derived from research conducted by practitioners or academics. Whether conducting research yourself or evaluating the work of others, you must understand the process behind the research, the tools used and its application to solving problems. This unit aims to introduce students to a range of research methods and information sources, to provide students with skills that are commonly used research methodologies. In addition, the unit will provide students with an understanding of the conceptual orientation involved when social science research methodologies are applied within a commercial context.

PQP4400 – Post-Graduate Preparation in Critical Thinking

Critical analytical skills are essential for problem solving and are valued as graduate attributes. This unit introduces students to different methods of critical thinking through the history of Western thought and philosophy that underline many traditions of modern Western scholarship. Postgraduate students will be prepared for future research by developing skills in reasoning and argument.
